"Times, of Course"

That's what all the newsboys say when asked which Barre paper sells the best. There is no doubt about it.

One member of Congress is fearful lest the Bethel quarries do not contain sufficient stone of good quality for the new union station for Washington. If Bethel cannot supply the stone Barre can, and if a committee is to come to Vermont to visit the Bethel quarries it should be made aware that Barre has granite enough to build several cities the size of Washington.

The trading stamp nuisance is receiving more or less notice in the state papers at present, because of the recent decision of the Supreme Court that the anti-trading stamp law is unconstitutional. Says the Burlington Free Press:

As was expected would be the case, the decision of the Supreme Court adverse to the anti-trading stamp statute has been promptly followed by energetic efforts to again introduce this nuisance into our larger towns; and, unless equally prompt action of a concerted character is taken by our merchants every important community in the state will again be hoodwinked by the promoters of this scheme of exacting tributes from both merchants and their patrons. Burlington has already been attacked, and if there are any cities in the state which have not yet been visited by the advance agents of trading stamp concerns, they are not likely to be exceptions for a great while. The price of the goods given away for trading stamps comes eventually out of the customer, and when this fact is discovered, as sooner or later will inevitably be the result, there is dissatisfaction and possibly a change of patronage. Be this as it may in the end the volume of trade is no larger than before for the merchants of any community as a whole, and the money paid to the trading stamp companies is practically money thrown away so far as either merchants or customers are concerned. If our people are wise, therefore, they will do everything legitimate to discourage the introduction of the trading stamp in Burlington and the same thing is true of other cities and towns in Vermont.

The Rutland News writing on the same subject, says:

"The trading stamp idea has been tried in no place in New England more generally than in North Adams, Mass., and the result is that the merchants there are of the belief that it has been a poor investment and have all abandoned it."

"The trading stamp project can have but one ending, and that is all the merchants will have to go into it for self-protection and the sole beneficiaries will be the trading stamp people. If it were possible for this system to increase the volume of business done in a town there would be some in advocating it. At the best the trading stamp can do no more than take business from one merchant and give it to another. Admitting that it does that, how long will it be before the merchant that loses will take up the stamps? Then all the merchants will find themselves supporting a set of men who have no claims upon them."

"In Springfield, Mass., the labor unions have attacked the system on the ground that the extra expense of the stamps is liable to keep the wages of the clerks down; and there is logic in that position."

"In the end, moreover, the people must pay for the stamps in increased prices for merchandise. The various trading stamp concerns have grown rich by fastening themselves like leeches upon merchants and, through them the public."

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Cleared From Our Exchange.

Julian Walbridge Rix, the well known painter of California scenery died yesterday in New York. Mr. Rix's death followed a surgical operation. He was born in Peacham, Vt., in 1841, and was a son of Judge Alfred Rix of San Francisco.

The quarantine at the barracks of Norwich University, Northfield, has been removed on all cadets but three. They will be liberated in a short time as they are only detained to make sure that they are immune from diphtheria. A culture was sent to the laboratory at Burlington in these cases and as there were signs of diphtheria microbes in the culture it was thought best by the health officer that the students be kept under quarantine a little longer. They are not ill. The other persons ill with diphtheria have nearly recovered.

One of the Brattleboro churches Sunday held appropriate Thanksgiving exercises in the Sunday school. The children were given slips of paper on which to write the one thing they were thankful for. The answers were read before the school by the superintendent, who emphasized those expressing a thankfulness for the Sunday school and the church. Some were thankful that there were no schools to attend this week, others that they had good fathers and mothers, while the answer that surprised the superintendent was that from a boy who was "truly thankful" that Yale whipped Harvard Saturday.

Littleness.

Some men are so small that they are almost justified in expecting to slip through the gates of heaven without being seen.—Denver News.

Along About Thanksgiving' Time.
Along about Thanksgiving' time, when all the leaves are down,
And all the fruit's been picked and all the hills are turnin' brown,
There's somethin' in the air that seems to stir your blood a bit,
That makes you glad you're in the world and that you're part of it;
The song the wind goes singin' in the evergreen's sublime;
There's glimmer in a man along about Thanksgiving' time.

There's somethin' wonderful about the ice so thin and white
Across the narrow little rut that dried up in the night;
It's crisscrossed in a hundred ways with streaks and veins and lines
And sparkles out like diamonds when the sun spunks up and shines,
And when you break it with your heel you couldn't hardly tell
Its taste from the flange of a little silver bell.

Along about Thanksgiving' time it seems, somehow, as though
The sky was nearer to us than it was awhile ago,
And when it's clear, how clear it is—the crisp, fresh air, I mean!
You'd almost think it blew through sleeves somewhere to make you clean.
Oh, when it's whiskin' strong and free it's nothin' but a crime
To not get out and stir along about Thanksgiving' time.

It's almost like a miracle to see the first snow fly,
To watch the million little chunks come dartin' from the sky,
To hear them bounce against the panes, to watch the wild things tamed,
Go tumblin' down to melt as though they kind of felt ashamed,
And when the darkness comes and lets the wind go murrining
It's like the sweet old lullabies our mothers used to sing.

Along about Thanksgiving' time there's somethin' in the air
That seems to make you brist and strong, that kind of crimp your hair;
You feel all ready for the storms you know you'll have to meet;
You're not afraid of anything that's walkin' round on feet,
And, lookin' at it any way, the old earth's quite sublime,
Although it's bare and brown along about Thanksgiving' time.

MUTINY ON HIGH SEAS.

Exciting Adventures of the German Ship Octavia.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 25.—The German ship Octavia, 142 days out from Antwerp, with a cargo of cement and steel rails to Port Los Angeles, has dropped anchor a mile offshore of the latter port. The captain of the vessel brought ashore his first officer in a dying condition and had him conveyed to a hospital in this city. The Octavia arrived in port with the sailmaker in frown, charged with murder, and the vessel's log showed three sailors buried at sea.

The story, so far as it can be learned, tells of an unusual tragedy on the high seas. It seems that soon after rounding the Horn the sailmaker, who, it is said, was drinking heavily, began making trouble among the crew and induced three sailors to join him in a raid on some whisky in the cargo. In an ensuing drunken fight the three sailors assaulted and severely beat the sailmaker.

Subsequently the sailmaker induced the same three men to make a second raid on the cargo, and it is said purposely caused them to drink of a carboy of carbolic acid, and they died. It is supposed that the first officer also drank of the poison and that this accounts for his present condition.

The captain, it is understood, has communicated with the German vice consul at San Francisco and with the consignees of the Octavia's cargo.

The order in the suit was filed with the clerk of the United States circuit court of Trenton, N. J., last Wednesday and was set down for argument before Judge Kirkpatrick.

Equal Distribution of Space!

Now Listen to This!

A perfect Shoe should contain not a single particle of space more than necessary, otherwise the Shoe becomes large and ungainly. The Dorothy Dodd Shoe leaves more space for the foot than any other Shoe we know of, yet the Shoe itself is absolutely smaller than the ordinary Shoe. That is because it equally distributes space.
